REASON FOR TODAY'S CALL:
 Unfortunately the previous alarms proved not being false. A small volume of water drips from the kitchen ceiling when someone takes shower upstairs.

DESCRIPTION OF WORK PERFORMED:
 OCT18: I removed the light fixtures in the kitchen ceiling and found that the shower drain pan was leaking. I believe the membrane used to seal it has detached.
 OCT24: While I believe more extensive repairs by a skilled tile guy will be required, I found a way to temporarily deflect water away from the connection between the shower drain pan and the membrane so the shower can be used until it is properly repaired.
 NOV22: The temporary repair I made was starting to detach. I returned with weather resistant duct tape, cleaned and dried the area, then reinstalled the pipe used to guide the water toward the center of the drain pan.
