REASON FOR TODAY'S CALL:

"The kitchen sink where my food crusher thingy is (that i never use) had standing water in it this morning. The plunger did the trick, but I don't trust the monster inside the food crusher thingy will stay happy for long. In addition, I've been having to do some plunger action in my bathroom for the toilet and the bathroom sink monster that has a Sensodyne toothpaste addiction needs to be put on a diet. The sink is draining slower than usual due to sink monster's girth :)"

DESCRIPTION OF WORK PERFORMED:

---unjammed garburator, recommended running at least once a week to keep rust from building up. ---the toilet seems to be in good working order, it just doesn't have a very strong flush. ---I used our PowerSpin drain snake to clear lavatory drain.

TECHNICIAN RECOMMENDATIONS:

When shopping for a new toilet keep in mind that the existing toilet is a 12" rough-in.
